Graduate Certificate in Family Medicine (GCFM)

The Academy of Family Physicians of Malaysia, in order to meet the nation's improving standards of healthcare care services, recognises the need for all general practitioners to keep up with the level of competence required for good medical practice through its academic programmes. The objectives of this training in general practice are:

- To increase the knowledge and skills of general practitioners.
- To enhance their understanding of the physicians' ethical and social responsibilities.
- To rationalise prescribing habits of general practitioners based on evidence.
- To help general practitioners deliver a high level of care to their patients and their families.
- To emphasise preventive primary healthcare and promote education in all health issues.
- To develop better practice management skills.
- To promote the concept of "One Family One Doctor" in the community.

AFPM has developed a two-year (4 semesters) distance-learning programme for the Graduate Certificate in Family Medicine.
